LEND ME YOUR EARS:

Harvard Get-Together Set In Rome For Friday

ATTENTION, HARVARD MEN! All Rome residents or visitors who have been connected with the college at Cambridge, Mass., are exhorted to get in touch with Marshall W. Swan at the U.S. Embassy (telephone 414; extensions 483 or 474) to make reservations for a luncheon to celebrate Harvard's Day on Friday, March 28.

Harvard is planning a world-wide reunion celebration on that day, which in the U.S. will be climaxed by a nation-wide hour-long broadcast arranged by poet Archibald MacLeish, Harper's editor Eric Larabee and William Bentinck-Smith, assistant to Harvard president Nathan M. Pusey.

Here in Rome the celebration will take place at Gigi Fazi's restaurant, the Giardino d'Inverno, at 49 Via Sallustiana, famous for its white lasagne, and the guests of honor will be J. Hampden Robb, Harvard University marshal, and Prof. Giuseppe Ugo Papi, rector of the University of Rome, who visited the Harvard campus on his recent, U.S.-sponsored trip to America.

Art Notes

All sorts of interesting new art shows are being revealed to the Roman public these days. The Italian Institute for the Middle and Far East, located in Palazzo those of British Francis Bacon on the walls of Gaspero Del Corso and Irene Brin's Obelisco Gallery on Monday... there'll be a vernissage this evening at 6 of works in various mediums — silographs, linoleums, etc. — by Yugoslav artist France Mihellic at Il Segno, at 4 Via Capo le Case... also this evening La Finestra, at 34 Via Porta Pinciana, will throw open its doors, or rather its window, to the public to show paintings, mostly maritime in subject, by Armando Buratti... other new Rome one-man shows include those of Spaniard Miguel Ortiz Berrocal and German painter Alfred Winter-Rust at La Medusa; of Umberto Maganzini at Il Camino; of D'Aleisio Da Vasto at Galleria Alberty; of Umberto M. Casotti at L'Altico; and Pasquarosa at Galleria Russo.

Rome Miscellany

A brilliant gathering assembled under the Hotel Excelsior's crystal chandeliers Thursday evening at the Tunisian Ambassador Habib Bourguiba Jr.'s reception in honor of his country's National Day. His guests included Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Alberto Folchi, British Ambassador Sir Ashley Clarke, French Ambassador Gaston Palewski, UNESCO executive Vittorio Veronesi and all of the envoys from the Arab, Far Eastern and Latin American nations... film actor Anthony Franciosa took off via Pan Am for Hollywood to be present at the presentation of the Academy Awards next Wednesday night. Franciosa is a leading candidate for an Oscar for his performance in "A Hatful of Rain." He'll be back in Rome early next month to take over the role of Goya opposite Ava Gardner in "The Naked Maja"... also on her way to Hollywood yesterday — though this was a TWAY — was Italian screen charmer Marisa Allasio, accompanied by her mother... Maria Meneghini Callas, stormy petrel of the operatic world, came down from Milan to Rome with her husband Gian Battista Meneghini yesterday, stayed only long enough to board a TWA airliner for Madrid, where she has an operatic engagement... the Maharajah and Maharani of Kapurthala, who have been stopping at the Flora, left yesterday by TWA for Paris... Adriano Olivetti, head of the vast business machine empire, will give an address at the Teatro Adriano on Piazza Cavour tomorrow morning at 10:30... Alexander and Dorothy Matturri postcard from Palm Beach, Fla., that they'll return to Rome in May... Tom Clavin, Villanova University football star of years ago, tossed his coins into the Trevi Fountain the other day, to insure an early return to Rome... Internationally-known businessman from N.Y.C., Nine Maimone Sr., is currently visiting his daughter Janet in Rome. Janet is the charming wife of Peppino Beneficio, one of the principal owners of the popular Via Veneto dine-and-drink spot, Café de Paris.

From All Over

Scattered notes from all over — FLORENCE: the mighty organ of the Basilica of Santa Croce, "Italy's Westminster Abbey," which has been dismantled for repairs, will be re-inaugurated tonight at 9:15 with a concert by the Bach Choir of Munich, led by famed organist Karl Richter. It will be an all-Bach program... TURIN: "Samia" — the letters stand for Salone Mercato Internazionale dell'Abbigliamento, or the International Show of Ready-Made Clothing — will be held from April 22 to 29... VERONA: plans for the annual summer opera season in the big Roman Arena are already laid. An announcement says it will run from July 24 till Aug. 17 and will present only three operas, instead of the usual half-dozen. They'll be "Turandot," "Aida" and "La Favorita"... SULMONA: this Central Italian town Thursday celebrated the 200th anniversary of the birth of its native son, the racy poet Ovid, who was born there March 20, 43 B.C. and whose "Art of Love" was an ancient Roman best-seller. Premier Adone Zoli was among those present at the festivities... BERUT: party news emanating yesterday from this Lebanon capital is that Kay and Phil Brown were hosts at a buffet supper honoring Mrs. Louise Boynton, who is the mother of Pan

American's regional director Jesse Boynton. Guests included John and Barbara Noble, "Mac" and Grace McPherson, Marian and Harry Purnell, Muriel and Chet Hagender and pianist Clyde Holmes.

YMCA Drive Reaches 1/5th Of Its Goal

The YMCA annual fund drive has realized 20 per cent of its goal of 3,000,000 lire, it was announced yesterday by Charles T. Tidball, YMCA director who is in charge of the campaign. The drive ends March 31.

Eighty volunteer workers are assisting in the campaign, including an American team composed of James J. Grieco of American Express, E. R. Perkins of American Export Lines, William Colby of the American Embassy, Capt. Richard F. Amity of the Offshore Procurement Program in Italy, Richard D. Longman and Louis De Liguori, retired Detroit automobile dealer.

Funds obtained during the drive will be used to support YMCA work in the south of Italy, to extend club work to underprivileged boys in slum areas and to aid in getting a permanent summer camp site.

Sinatra, Radio Owner

WASHINGTON, March 21 (AP)—Movie actor-singer Frank Sinatra has been granted authority by the Federal Communications Commission to buy control of three radio stations in the northwestern United States for two million dollars. The venture is Sinatra's first into radio ownership.
