OBITUARIES

Marty Maher Dies At West Point

WEST POINT, Jan. 18 (UPI) — Irish-born Sgt. Martin (Marty) Maher, who listed among his friends many of the famous graduates of the U.S. Military Academy — including President Eisenhower—died yesterday at the U.S Army Hospital.

Marty was the subject of a movie, "The Long Grey Line," based on his autobiography, "Bringing Up the Brass."

In a foreword to the book, Eisenhower wrote: "Marty became my particular friend in 1912 when we spent many hours working over a knee I had injured playing football. I cannot put too high an estimate on the help he gave my morale."

Maj. Gen. F. H. Smith

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Jan. 18 (AP) — Retired Army Maj. Gen. Fredric Harrison Smith, 81, of Hampton, died last night in the Fort Monroe Hospital after a long illness.

Maj. Gen Joseph S. Bradley

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP) — U.S. Army Maj. Gen. Joseph S. Bradley, 60, who was instrumental in forming the new German Army, died yesterday after a long illness.

Marcello Moretti

Marcello Moretti, 50, well-known Italian stage actor who performed in the United States, died yesterday of a heart attack. Moretti became famous ten years ago when he played the popular Italian personage of Harlequin with Milan's Little Theater Company.

Laurence V. Updegraff

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (UPI) — Laurence Vale Updegraff, 76, a retired assistant Sunday editor of the New York Times, died yesterday.

M. William Bray

UTICA, N Y., Jan. 18 (UPI) — M. William Bray, 71, former lieutenant governor of New York, died last night after a long illness.

Gas Prices Down

The Italian Cabinet has cut gasoline taxes by a further four lire (two-thirds of a U.S. cent) a liter. This reduced the consumer price to 96 lire (15.4 cents) a liter for normal and 106 lire (17 cents) for super gasoline, compared to 127 and 138 lire (20.5 and 22 cents) at the time of the Suez crisis.

Spanish Historians Report Find Of Body Which May Be Columbus

SEVILLE, Spain, Jan. 18 (UPI) — Historians believe they may have found the body of Christopher Columbus.

The remains were found in the ancient Church of La Cartija in Seville.

The church was being restored and several days ago historians, properly attended by medical men, decided to open an ancient tomb there. Inside they found the remains of a man, fairly well preserved and with part of a leg missing.

Jose Sebastian Bandaran, canon of the church, said that Columbus had asked that his remains be placed in Seville.

He said Columbus apparently had been first buried in Valladolid but his body was later moved to Seville and buried in the chapel of Santa Anna in the La Cartija Church.

Prof. Manuel Jimenez, an authority on Columbus, said he has studied numerous documents in his possession and believes the remains could be those of Columbus' brother, Diego.

He pointed out, however, that so far as was known the remains of Columbus were lost between 1544 and 1550 during terrible floods in Seville.

Schuberth Shows Fashion Glamor

a tightly-fitted look in all the dresses. Skirts were quite long — perceptibly below the knees.

The Schuberth glamor treatment returned for evening, with ruffled bows and beads, and a very feminine sweetness look.

A white tulle gown was embroidered all over with little yellow velvet dots to give the impression of mimosa, and had tulle ruffs at bodice and hem.

A white organza ballgown was appliqued with red and back berries and had black velvet streamers drifting down the black.

Guidi's straight-tailored line for coats and suits depended on very good cutting. There were many unlined felt coats in bright red or green, and narrow red or green strips of felt were tied around the hips of black and white checked wool dresses.

Waistlines were lowered to the hips and sometimes disappeared completely.

Patrick De Barentzen curved waistlines up under the bosom and rounded and filled out skirts so much that even a skinny girl would have trouble not looking a bit hefty (and swayback to boot).

For many dresses there were even two waistlinses, the one just under the bosom the other just above the waist. A belt tied somewhere in between them.

Jackets stopped just about above the second waistline.

Coats in silk ottoman looked like suits, with stitched bands at the hip, faking jackets, and were belted just above the a waist.

The skirts of cocktail dresses looked like ballons with the air let out.

For evening, skirts were blown out over the tummy and the rotundness was emphasized with appliqued rhinestones and colored satin balls.

Enzo got us back on the straight and narrow with slim lines and natural waists.

He put split panel coats over suit dresses and lifted the front of little straight jackets so that blouses could show below.

Divers Find Debris Of Radar Tower

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (UPI) — Divers made their first entry into the submerged wreckage of the New Jersey coast today in an effort to recover the bodies of 26 men believed trapped in the Air Force radar installation.

In the first penetration of the tower's living quarters the divers found only debris. The search will continue until all parts of the trubble superstructure have been explored.

Twenty-eight men are presumed to have died in the tragedy which occurred Sunday evening. One body was recovered from the Atlantic and another was sighted but could not be retrieved from the stormy sea.

Armstrong-Jones Lands A Job Without Salary

LONDON, Jan. 18 (AP)—Antony Armstrong-Jones, once a fashionable photographer, will become one of London's millions of office workers next week—his first job since his marriage to Princess Margaret last May.

Court officials announced he will work without fees or salary for the Council of Industrial Design, a government-sponsored body aimed at improving the design of British manufactured products.

A formal statement from Clarence House tonight said Armstrong-Jones wil be associated with the council's educational and exhibition programs—a job that involves handling films, film strips and other visual teaching aids.

From next Monday he will have an office at the council's headquarters in Haymarket, just down the road from Piccadilly Circus.

The council said Armstrong-Jones will start work each day at 10 a.m. and work regular office hours—just like the millions who pour in and out of the capital every weekday.

Quebec Man Held In Family Deaths

BEDFORD, Quebec, Jan. 18 (AP) — Crown Prosecutor Claude Noiseux said he will charge 63-year-old Abel Vosburgh with murder today in the death of his wife and 11 children, whose bodies were found in their burned shanty home Dec. 29.

A coroner's jury last night found Vosburgh, sole survivor of the fire, criminally responsible. As a crowd of 300 persons milled around outside the hearing room, Vosburgh denied he caused the fire and kept his family from escaping.

Vosburgh, an unemployed laborer, testified the flames awoke him and that he called to his wife, whom police said was dead before the fire started. Vosburgh said he then ran to a water pump outside their home in the village of Noyon, 35 miles south of Montreal.

Michigan Tragedy

GRAND BLANC, Mich., Jan. 18 (AP)—Police said here a Grand Blanc man shot and killed his wife and four children yesterday, then turned a hunting rifle on himself.

Dead are Thomas Clark, 37, and his wife, Janet, also 37, and their four children, Carl, 12, Kathleen, 11, Karen, 10,, and Kurt, 8.
