

Adams Quits White House Post

Eisenhower, in accepting Adams' decision, was lavish in his praise for his assistant.

His letter assured Adams that "your total dedication to the nation's welfare has been of the highest possible order." He called Adams' administration of his post brilliant.

After his speech, which ran less than 10 minutes, Adams told reporters, "I have no further statement." Adams blamed neither the Democrats nor the Republicans for forcing his departure, saying simply that "these efforts, is now clear, have been intended to destroy me and in so doing to embarrass the administration and the President of the United States."

Adams said his testimony before the House investigators "clearly established that I had never influenced nor attempted to influence any agency, or any officer or employee of any agency in any case, decision or matter whatsoever."

He said the committee received "completely irresponsible testimony, and, without conscience, gave ear to rumor, innuendo and even unsubstantiated gossip."

Reasons For Delaying
Adams said many people had wondered why he had not resigned immediately when testimony led a number of people — including the President — to the conclusion that he had been imprudent.

He said he had two basic reasons for delaying.

"First, it is not — nor has it ever been — my nature to run in the face of adversity, in my years of public service — nearly 20 now — I have never once done so."

"Second, since I have done no wrong, my resigning could have been construed as an admission that I had, in the atmosphere which has surrounded the controversy."

Finally, he said, his decision was made "difficult in the extreme" because he had "come to understand the selflessness and the dedication" of Eisenhower.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, who was at Adams' side throughout the tense, dramatic moments of his announcement, left the studio to fly back to Newport tonight.

Asked about a successor to Adams, Hagerty said:

"I have nothing to say on that." The President probably never has been quite as uninterested in his praise of a departing official. At one point, he said:

"Your performance has been brilliant — the public has been the beneficiary of your unselfish work. After our six years of intimate association you have, as you have had throughout, my complete trust, confidence and respect."

"I accept your resignation with sadness. You will be sorely missed."

Schreiber Heads New Vets. Party

PARIS, Sept. 22 (AP) — Jean Jacques Servan-Schreiber today was elected chairman of a new war veterans organization pledged to a negotiated settlement of the Algerian rebellion.

Later he said the new organization, the National Federation of Veterans of Algeria, already has 21,000 members and expected to add many more.

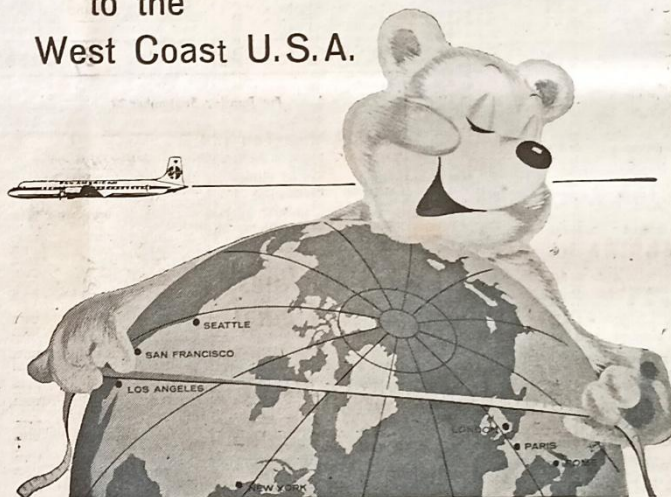

The veterans organization adopted a three-point platform which urged a peaceful solution in Algeria through negotiation with "our adversary," full veterans' rights for troops in Algeria, and condemnation of immoral and dishonorable tactics — a reference to charges French troops have tortured Moslem prisoners.

De Gaulle Plans New Algeria Visit

PARIS, Oct. 21 (UPI) — Premier Charles de Gaulle plans to visit Algeria Nov. 1, the fourth anniversary of the nationalist uprising, it was reported today. Political informants said the general plans to inspect the North African territory to make sure that his instructions for a free electoral campaign for the Nov. 30 National Assembly election are being carried out.

However De Gaulle's office denied that any date had been set: "It is certain that Gen. De Gaulle will travel to Algeria in the coming weeks but no date has been fixed," a spokesman said.

De Gaulle wants to be in Algeria Nov. 1, the day when the nationalist insurgents four years ago started their anti-French attacks, informants said.

Newspapers claimed that while in Algiers De Gaulle would hold conversations with Europeans and Moslems in all walks of life and of all shades of political opinion as he has done during his previous trips there.

De Gaulle may shed some light on his plans when he gives a press conference at his Matignon Palace residence.

Informal sources claimed he would report on his efforts to pacify Algeria, and world problems from the Quemoy crisis to the Middle East.

Cabinet Discussion
With De Gaulle in the chair the cabinet today discussed a set of bills concerning the set-up of the Fifth Republic's institutions.

De Gaulle plans to make the mandate of National Assembly Deputies last five years. The Senators mandate would last nine years.

The Council of Ministers (full-scale cabinet) under President Rene Coty is due to approve the bills Friday.

BOAC Maintenance Engineers End 11-Day Unofficial Strike

LONDON, Oct. 21 (UPI)—A mass meeting of BOAC workers this afternoon voted to end the 11-day unofficial strike of aircraft maintenance engineers that grounded most of BOAC's aircraft.

The vote was in answer to an appeal from BOAC strike committee leader Sid Maitland to the men to return to their jobs. It followed an agreement earlier today between employers and the labor unions on the terms of settling the dispute.

The strikers vote in favor of ending the walkout was virtually unanimous, there was one abstention. It was expected that the first of the strikers will resume work this afternoon.

The strike has already cost the nationalized company more than 1,000,000 sterling in lost business.

The agreement was reached after talks lasting nearly four hours at the Ministry of Labour between airline chiefs and union leaders.

It followed failure earlier today by Communist-led shop stewards to extend the strike. More than 1,000 engineers of Britain's European Airways voted overwhelmingly not to join the walkout.

Khrushchev Warns Of Crackdown On Drink, Drunks

LONDON, Oct. 21 (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, himself noted for his tipping at diplomatic receptions, has warned Russia the government is planning a crackdown on drunks and moonshiners.

"We must proclaim the sternest struggle against drunkenness and put an end to this evil," Khrushchev told a group of farmers at the village of Kalinovka near Kursk.

"Drunkness saps man's health," the Soviet boss added piously. "However, this is not all. The drunkard disfigures family life. Damages society."

And Khrushchev added: "The government is at present working out a bill under which sterner measures will be taken against drunkards and those who contribute to drunkenness."
