LEND ME YOUR EARS:

Shah's Visit To Italy To Begin On Thursday

FINAL ITINERARY DETAILS of Shah Mohamed Pahlevi of Iran's state visit to Italy, postponed from last month because of Pope Pius XII's death, have just been announced.

The Shah's royal plane is due to land at Ciampino at 3 p.m. Thursday. The ruler will be met at the airport by President Giovanni Gronchi and other Italian dignitaries, and Iranian Ambassador Mousa Noury Esfandiari, and then will begin the formal motorcade, along streets lined with Italian armed forces, to the Quirinal Palace. On Thursday night President and Mrs. Gronchi will hold a banquet in the Quirinal's Sala della Madonna in honor of the Shah.

Friday's doings include the laying of a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier by the Shah, a visit to the Air Force jet training base at Pratica di Mare, a reception at the Campidoglio, a private dinner at the Quirinal and a gala performance at the Teatro dell'Opera. The following day and Sunday, Nov. 30, will be filled with more receptions, political confabs and ceremonies — climaxed by a formal party given by the Shah himself for the Gronchi's at the Esquilino.

Happy Birthday . . .

...today to Frances Reynolds, American artist living in Florence, and to Francis I. G. Coleman of the U. S. Embassy, and to AP's Irish photographer Jim Pringle.

More Bazaar Data

Several original small ceramics by Italy's noted sculptor Umberto Mastroianni will be among the collectors' items to be found today at Mrs. Umberto Tine's "Little Italy" booth at the Santa Susanna Bazaar.

A prize winner at several Biennale shows in Venice and the Quadriennale in Rome, Mastroianni is represented in museums in both Europe and America. His daughter-in-law Berta has won recognition for her ceramic jewelry; and one such ornament, a bronze-colored necklace, is one of the distinctive pieces on sale at "Little Italy." The booth is also showing unusual works, such as a cloth picture-book for the pre-school child, by Charles Cortese De Bossis, daughter of Adolfo De Bossis, known for his Italian translations of Shelley's poems.

Barberini Babble

Denmark's Premier and Foreign Minister H. C. Hansen has arrived in Rome for a short private vacation. . . . Henry Ford II and his extremely pretty blonde wife, escorted by Pan American's George Seabury (who was Ford's classmate at Yale), were among the guests at the beautifully appointed cocktail party given Thursday night by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Guzzardi of Time-Life at their Via Bertoni home. Also there were Mr. and Mrs. Fentrez Kuhn of Idaho, who have decided to become Rome residents for another winter, and his sister, Mrs. Robert Hooker, who is visiting the Kuhns before returning to London, where her husband is with the U. S. Embassy. . . . Sen. Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) has checked into the Hassler. . . . Dr. Giovanni Galleni, CIT's chief of foreign services, is back in Rome after a tour of the States where he visited New York, Chicago and Los Angeles. . . . André Malraux, the French novelist-politician, philosopher, "Man's Fate," was due at Ciampino yesterday via Air France en route from Paris to Tehran and Tokyo. . . . another distinguished Frenchman, Ambassador Gaston Palewski, will travel to today to Leghorn to attend a lecture given by Prof. Henri Gouxier of the Sorbonne under the auspices of the Italo-French Association of Culture. . . . TWA whisked busy British TV star Sabrina to Los Angeles and U. Brustio, president of Milan's Rinascente, to Cairo and Bombay.

Art Notes

Irene Brin and Gasparo Del Corso are today opening a new exhibit at their Obelisco Gallery on Via S. Maria — a one-man show of oils and gouaches by Vera Stravinsky, artist-wife of the great composer Igor Stravinsky, who on Thursday inaugurates the Accademia Filarmonica concert season at the Teatro Eliseo. The Stravinskys, incidentally, are stopping at the Hassler. . . . John Sanders, an artist who is well-known in her native Canada, will make her Roman debut with an exhibit at the Fondazione Ernesto Besso on Largo di Torre Argentina Monday afternoon. Miss Sanders specializes in flower paintings in tempera. . . . On the same day recent paintings by Michele Casella, most of them depicting the picturesque scenery of the Trullo Gulf, will be put on view at the Galleria Russa on Piazza di Spagna. . . . G. U. Bertorotta and G. Ricci have opened a unique show at their Galleria L'Incontro, 19th century "ex-votos" from the Gioielleria region south of Rome. . . . the Camino Gallery's current exhibit on Via del Babuino is a double-bill — sculpture by the English artist Ann Tudor-Walters and paintings by Piero Sbrana. . . . abstractions by Claudio Cintoli will be displayed, beginning this afternoon, at Claudio Bruni's La Medusa Gallery on Via del Babuino. . . . and at the YMCA of Italian Independence there's the showing of work by Uruguayan artist Norberto Berdia.

Decree Of Separation Granted Dawn Addams, Prince Massimo

By the Associated Press

A Rome civil court judge yesterday granted a provisional decree of separation to British actress Dawn Addams and her Italian husband, Prince Vittorio Massimo.

Judge Giuseppe Bonadonna awarded temporary custody of the couple's only child, three-year-old Stefano, to Massimo with the proviso that Miss Addams may visit her son "whenever she wants."

The judge's decree also provided that Massimo "shall be obliged to consult with the child's mother on any important decision concerning his (Stefano's) future, namely any details concerning education, choice of a nurse and his health."

If further provides that Miss Addams may visit Stefano at Massimo's farm, about 25 miles from Rome.

The decree, issued after a three-hour hearing, is the first step in an action for legal separation brought by Miss Addams after four years of marriage to the prince. She said she sought the separation because of "total incompatibility of character" and asked for custody of Stefano.

Massimo, in turn, filed a counter suit for separation and asked that Miss Addams be denied use of the title of Princess Massimo.

Judge Bonadonna's provisional decree did not refer to this point.

Year's Wait
Gino Sotis, attorney for Miss Addams, said a final decision on the legal separation actions probably would not be handed down for at least a year. Judge Bonadonna set the next hearing for Jan. 23.

Before rendering his provisional decree Bonadonna, as provided under Italian law, spoke to both the prince and Miss Addams individually in an effort to effect a reconciliation.

He spoke first to Massimo who arrived at Rome's Palace of Justice promptly at the 9 a.m. hour set for the hearing. Miss Addams, who arrived an hour and a half

Pier Angeli Files Suit For Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21 (UPI) — Actress Pier Angeli filed suit for divorce against singer Vic Damone yesterday after efforts to mend their marital difficulties proved futile.

In her divorce suit, the pretty Italian-born actress said her husband caused her "great mental anguish."

She charged the popular singer with unspecified "acts of cruelty" in her complaint, in which she seeks custody of their three-year-old son, Perry.

Earlier yesterday, Damone signed a property settlement that cleared the way for the filing of the divorce suit.
