UN Tells U.S. Spies Quit

the case July 26.

The UN statement said Mishukov, a translator in conference services since Nov. 11, 1957 resigned last June 4 in order to attend a graduate school in the Soviet Union and that "his sparation from the Secretariat was completed July 15, 1962."

The case of alleged espionage by Soviet citizens in the UN Secretariat was the first to come to light since Thant became acting secretary-general last November.

The UN's apparent readiness to talk about it contrasted with the secretiveness on such things generally followed by Thant's Swedish predecessor, the late Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

Hammarskjold, who had to deal with a few such cases, spoke of them only if pressed at news conferences, and then only in vague terms, unless they involved diplomatic exchanges or court actions.

U.S. sources confirmed Sunday night that the delegation had brought the case to Thant's attention July 26 and followed it up till both the accused men had left the U.S.

thundered down.

An eyewitness told how he saw two girls buried to their necks in the debris as he rushed to the site after hearing a violent noise like a demolition or a bomb.

He said he and other rescuers dug frantically with their hands to get the two girls and other victims from the rubble. One of the girls was dead.

Rescue work continued tonight in extremely dangerous conditions. Workers and officials said there was a serious risk that a remaining wall would also fall and cause the collapse of the entire building.

World Report.

Messmer said France is determined, more than ever, "to develop a nuclear capacity because there is no defense possible without nuclear arms."

"We are well aware," he said, that "American nuclear power is overwhelming and we fully recognize that our nuclear power will not be comparable to it.

"But what we also know is that American nuclear arms, both strategic and tactical are now and will remain at the sole disposition of the President of the United States.

"And no matter how strong the links of friendship which bind us to the U.S. and despite the common interests we share, we cannot put our national defense in the hands of the United States indefinitely."

free nations. This was his alternative to the emergence of close-knit trade blocs.

The series of Commonwealth speeches, filled with understones of sorrow and bitterness, brought a new atmosphere of stress to the conference in Marlborough House.

As the smoke cleared away it became apparent that Macmillan had been backed into a tight political corner in which his own job ultimately could be at stake.

Macmillan himself was not ready to throw in his hand. Confronted by the anxiety of his Commonwealth colleagues, he said Britain would do her best in the resumed Brussels talks with the Common Market six to prevent shocks to the economies of Commonwealth .

He also said Britain, once in the Common Market, would work to keep that trade "reaching orientated toward an outward-looking policy and we did resist narrow ... ist concepts ... might make the world's rich nations richer and the poor poorer.

Jayne Mansfield In Tears As She Flies Home From Rome

LONDON, Sept. 18 (AP) — American actress Jayne Mansfield broke into tears aboard a Rome-to-London airplane today—but gave fellow passengers no reason for her grief as she flew on to New York.

"An Italian-looking man saw her off at Rome Airport," said Mrs Dudley Osborne, who sat near the actress, "and she seemed very upset at the parting."

Jayne's plane to New York was Air India's Flight 103.

She changed planes here but talked to no one.

Her hair flying in all directions, she was pale and looked distressed.

Holding the arm of an airline official, she walked slowly down the steps of the Rome plane, the last passenger to leave the aircraft.

A car took her across the field to board the New York bound plane—a jet.

"She cried a lot on the flight," said Robert Turner, who sat just in front of the star.

Said Mrs Mavis Turner, another passenger:

"She collapsed in tears while flying up from Rome. She cried for some time and then appeared to go to sleep."

An airline attendant said she looked upset and unwell.

"She was confused about her luggage and she also thought she'd lost her passport," he said.

The actress and her husband, strongman Mickey Hargitay, signed separation agreements in early August.

European gossip columnists have lately reported that Jayne had found a new friend in Italian film executive Enrico Bomba.

Jill St. John Still Hopes To Save Marriage

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Sept. 18 (AP)—Actress Jill St. John says she and wealthy Lance Reventlow are hopeful of mending a rift in their two-year marriage.

And she told a newsman they will try for their reconciliation while living under the same roof.

Miss St. John personally answered the door at the couples' hilltop mansion, having been given the day off from movie-making chores at Paramount pictures. She said her husband was at home, too.

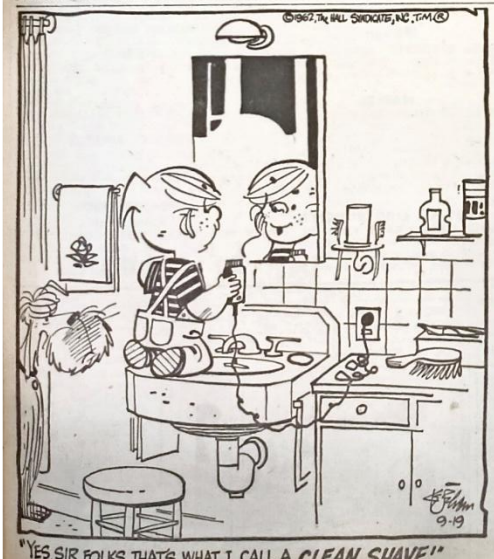

"We're trying to work things out." She said, "and we're going to do it right here."

Reventlow, 26, the son of Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton, married the actress in San Francisco, March 24, 1960.

Miss St. John, 22, filed—and later withdrew—a suit for separate maintenance in nearby Santa Monica last July.

Katy Jurado Files

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 18 (AP)—Mexican actress Katy Jurado filed suit for separate maintenance Friday from Academy Award winning actor Ernest Borgnine.
