MacLeod Calls On Allies To Defend Berlin Rights

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP) — Iain MacLeod, British Minister of Labor and National Services, told a nationwide American television audience he believes the allies should make it quite clear they have rights in West Berlin and intend to stay there.

Lucky Of London Finally Sees Sun

LONDON, Dec. 1 (AP) — The sun shone on London today — first time in 15 days.

The 15 days without sun is not as unusual as some may think. Back in December 1890 London went through the whole month without a single moment of sunshine, the weathermen said.

U.S. Scientists Start Study Of A-Rocket

LOS ALAMOS, N. M., Dec. 1 (AP) — A study of propulsors of a rocket by a series of small nuclear explosions was announced today by the Los Alamos scientific laboratory.

The studies by a group of theoretical physicists and mathematicians at Los Alamos are to determine how effectively blasts from given masses of exploding nuclear materials can be directed to get maximum propulsion.

The explosion series method first was outlined in 1947 by Dr. Stanislaw Ulam, research advisor at the laboratory and co-developer of the hydrogen bomb. Later work in the method was done by T. B. Taylor, a former staff member at Los Alamos who now is with General Atomic.

The studies, if successful, could point the way to a possible method of propelling space ships through the solar system. In view of this, the laboratory will share ideas and information with General Atomic, which has a contract to consider the possible structure and operation of such a space ship.

Jordan Ends Martial Law

AMMAN, Jordan, Dec. 1 (UPI) — The government wrote an end to more than 19 months of martial law today by restoring civil authority throughout Jordan.

The change-over, announced by King Hussein Saturday, was formally approved at a cabinet meeting last night.

Public jubilation followed as hundreds of cables and other messages hailing the move poured into the royal palace.

Political circles viewed restoration of civil law with satisfaction, too. They interpreted the switch as government confidence in the non-existence of "outside" threats. The King and cabinet had said repeatedly that "outside" dangers had made martial law essential to inner peace.

Peru Paper Reports Peeved Peter Chases, Tries To Boot Lensman

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 1 (AP) — The newspaper La Cronica reported from Cuzco yesterday that Group Capt. Peter Townsend chased and tried to kick a photographer who took a picture of him seated on a park bench with his French secretary Marie-Juce Jarnagat.

The story from Cuzco, where Townsend is filming the ancient Inca ruins, gave this version:

Reporters and photographers followed Townsend around after his arrival here, taking his picture and asking him questions.

When one of them asked about his romance with Princess Margare ret of England and his reported romance with Miss Jarnagat, Townsend grew angry.

Later, when he and Miss Jarnagat were seated in a park talking, one of the photographers snapped their picture.

Townsend reportedly became furious, tried to kick the photographer and chased him off.

Townsend arrived in Lima three days ago with a group of French movie photographers to make a film tentatively entitled "The Lone Wolf Voyage."

These were among his points:

(1) The Western Allies cannot now accept Soviet Prime Minister Nikita S. Khrushchev's "unilateral repudiation of agreements made by four parties some years ago."

(2) Regarding Berlin, "I think the best thing at the moment is to make quite clear that we intend to maintain our rights." This, he said, "conceivably could mean an airlift again."

(3) As to claims by Khrushchev that Russia, by 1970, will reach the point where it will out-produce the West, "this is the sort of challenge we've got to meet. This is the sort of battle we can fight and win. I believe it is the true battle."

MacLeod brushed off a new statement by East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht that an airlift would be regarded as a military threat to East Germany.

He said he saw no chance that such a supply line would lead to war and, indeed, saw nothing changed by Khrushchev's new note. "I do not see it necessary to respond to the note."

Pope John XXIII Receives Shah Of Iran

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 1 (AP) — Pope John XXIII today invoked "the most abundant favor of almighty God" upon Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, Shah of Iran, and upon his people.

The invocation, given at a formal audience of the Shah with the Pope, thus was worded slightly differently than the usual Apostolic Blessing. The Shah and most of his people are Moslem.

The Shah, who was just completed a five-day state visit to Italy, was received at Vatican City with full military honors.

Presenting Foreign Minister

During the audience, which lasted half an hour, the Shah presented his Foreign Minister, Ali Akbar Hekmat, and other members of his retinue to the Pontiff. He presented the Pope with a costly Persian carpet. The Pope gave him a gold medal and a book of reproductions of paintings in the Sistine Chapel.

Pope John, who once was Apostolic Nuncio to Turkey, told the Shah he had never had the pleasure of visiting Iran, but had been near its borders.

He said he was "pleased that the Shah had shown benevolence toward Christian institutions in Iran."

Visits College

Sunday, Pope John celebrated his first Mass as Pope outside the Vatican during a visit to the College of the Propagation of the Faith on the Janiculum Hill.

He arrived at the nearby college a few minutes after 7 a.m. and immediately proceeded to the chapel for the Holy Mass.

Present were Pietro Cardinal Fumasoni Biondi, 86-year-old Prefect of the Sacred Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith and Gregory Peter Cardinal Agagianian, Pro-Prefect.

Following the Mass, the Pope told the 250 missionary students from 47 countries that they had one of the most vital missions of the church in spreading the word of God.

The Mass marked the religious preparation for the Christmas season in the spiritual exercises of Advent Week.

Three spiritual exercises, which will end next Saturday, include prayer and meditation and daily masses or offices. They make continual reference to the coming anniversary of the birth of Christ, Dec. 25.

Several hours after the audience the Shah left in his special plane for Milan. He is expected to fly from there to Switzerland tomorrow.
