LEND ME YOUR EARS:

Folk Music Smash Hit At Goldoni

ROMANS HEARD THEIR FIRST FORMAL folk music concert Sunday evening at the Goldoni Theater—and they loved it—so much so that the eight principals had to give a command performance last night. The 250-seat theater was filled for Sunday's show and those turned away demanded another chance. The musicians were happy to oblige. They are a group of professionals and amateurs holding forth every Friday and Saturday at the Folk Studio, 58 Via Garibaldi, and from the looks of things, they're going to need bigger quarters. The SRO audience, half of which was American, was completely captivated by the well-staged show. A lot of credit for this must go to Harold Bradley, director of the Studio, who found time to bring folk music to Rome, along with carrying on full-time careers as an actor and artist.

Bradley is often very effective as a jazz-folk singer, as he proved in a couple of songs Sunday, notably "St. James' Infirmary." Among the individual performers, Maureen Kennedy Martin, Rafael de Ronda and Kay Billig were standouts. Others contributing to the concert's success in solos, duets and trios were Juan Antonio, Ivo Bruner, Dan Perry.

JAMES MASON and family shown in happier days at their Hollywood home. With Mason and his wife Pamela are their two children, Portland and Morgan. Mrs Mason filed suit for divorce Friday against her actor-husband, charging him with "habitual adultery" for three years with three women.

King of Pan American, cubmaster; Thomas Quackenboss of ENI, assistant cubmaster; John Shortall, committee chairman; Alfred Cotcher, secretary; Stacy Hulse, treasurer, and den mothers Mrs Thomforde, Mrs Quackenboss, Mrs Manfredi and Mrs McHale. These four dens are already active and more will be formed as enrollment increases. Parents of children 8 through 10 years old who wish to join are asked to phone Cotcher at 321.439 for information, or attend the next pack meeting at 8 p.m. Nov. 30 at the Overseas School, Via Cassia. Maj. Charles Gresham remains as institutional representative.

Rome Jottings

The Students and Artists Center at St. Paul's American Church, 58 Via Napoli, will have a musical recital at 9 p.m. today. Clarinetist William O. Smith and pianist John Eaton will play Wagner, Bartok and Stravinsky. In addition they will play Eaton's own Concert Piece for Clarinet and Piano. Refreshments will be served after the recital and everyone's invited . . . Viennese painter Hundertwasser, who once praised the value of a line drawn with his foot on the sidewalk, has a show now on at the La Medusa Gallery, his first one-man exhibit in Rome. Brilliant colors and some very interesting organic forms.

Singer Who Captivates Can't Quiet Show Biz Audience

LONDON, Nov. 26 (AP)—Singer Shirley Bassey, whose thrilling voice captivates most audiences, stormed angrily last night at the one that got away—an audience of show biz people.

"Those at the back make this sound like a damned auction," she snarled between songs.

"I thought we were all professionals here."

Then she punched out a snappy version of "What Kind of Fool Am I?" and stamped off stage.

Miss Bassey was the cabaret star at a swank West End party celebrating the 10th anniversary of Agatha Christie's "The Mousetrap," Britain's longest running play.

Her audience of about 1,000 included Dame Sybil Thorndike and Richard Attenborough, both luminaries of the London stage. It was a gossiping section at the rear of the hall that riled Miss Bassey, who hammers out a song as if she uses pistons for vocal chords.

Holding back her tears, Miss Bassey continued the angry scene off stage.

"What do you want me to say about tonight?" she snapped at a concerned cluster of friends. "I sang, didn't I?"

Three days ago, Miss Bassey announced the break-up of her marriage to 35-year-old film producer Kenneth Hume. Hume has since been in hospital suffering from what friends said was an overdose of drugs. He was released last night.

Death Row Makes Keen Film Critics

SAN QUENTIN, Calif., Nov. 26 (AP) — Twenty death row prisoners staged a shouting, banging, 20-minute demonstration at San Quentin Friday because they didn't get an extra movie during Thanksgiving week.

They walked out Thanksgiving Day on "Tight Little Island," a British comedy which they didn't think was funny. So they were shown "Cry of the City." That was supposed to have been the bonus movie for today.

Associate Warden Lewis Nelson finally talked the demonstrators back to their cells. The damage: two broken table tennis paddles.

Yves Berger Wins French Femina Prize

PARIS, Nov. 26 (Reuter) — The Femina Prize, one of France's top literary awards, was today awarded to 29-year-old author Yves Berger for his novel "Le Sud" (The South).

The prize, awarded by an all-woman jury of 12, is the feminine equivalent of the Prix Goncourt, the top literary award won this year by Anna Langfus for her novel "Les Baggages de Sable" (Baggage of Sand).

Berger won the award on the twelfth ballot after a long tussle with 42-year-old Robert Pinget, author of "L'Inquisitoire" (The Inquisition).

The prize is worth about $1,000.

In "Le Sud," Berger, a teacher from Avignon, tells the story of a man torn between the influence of his imaginative father, who leads him to believe he is living in Virginia in 1812, and that of his affectionate sister who tries to bring him back to reality.

Berger has published a study on Boris Pasternak, the Soviet author and poet. "Le Sud" was his first novel and he is working on his second.

Jayne Going Slow On Way To Divorce

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., Nov. 26 (AP)—Actress Jayne Mansfield said Saturday she had a telephone conversation with estranged husband Mickey Hargitay, and now she isn't so sure about getting a divorce.

"He's still hoping for a reconciliation," said Miss Mansfield, who has been linked romantically with Italian movie maker Enrico Bomba. "That's why I'm in no hurry to get a divorce. It may be a couple of months before I decide."

Kessel Is 'Immortal'

PARIS, Nov. 26 (Reuter)—Novelist and reporter Joseph Kessel, 64, has been elected one of the "Immortals" of the French Academy, guardians of the purity of the French language. Kessel, is best known for his action novels, several of which have been filmed.

World Celebrates New Year's Noisily

happiest new year celebration since World War II.

IN WEST BERLIN, the new year got off to a violent start. Police said they were called to 206 brawls in the first 10 hours of 1963. There were 141 arrests for disorderly conduct and 105 persons were injured by firecrackers, illegally set off by merrymakers.

East and West Berlin police traded shots across the border in a somber reminder that a new year in itself solves no political tension. There was no word on the fate of the East German refugee whose escape touched off the shooting. Three other refugees arrived in the Western sector apparently unnoticed by the East's border guards.

In Munich, scores more people were injured at he height of a giant fireworks display. Munich's eye clinic reported a record number of cases requiring first aid traetment for burns.

IN AUSTRIA, thousands of Viennese, thronging the city hall square, waltzed peaceably into 1963 to the music of Johann Strauss. Champagne corks popped on the crowded steps of St. Stephen's Cathedral and good-humored revelers massed at all the city's show spots, undeterred by a drizzle of rain and freezing temperatures.

AT LONDON, a shivering crowd of less than 5,000, much smaller than usual, celebrated the arrival of the new year in snow-banked Trafalgar Square.

"We cannot remember a quieter New Year's Eve," said a police spokesman.

Even so, more than 150 persons were booked on drunk and assault charges in the center of the capital.

A SHIVERING crowd of less than 300,000 New Yorkers, the smallest of many years, celebrated the birth of 1963 in Times Square. Less than nine minutes after the new year began, the square was almost empty.

The official temperature in the wind-whipped square was 11 degrees at midnight. Bitter cold and wind gusts up to 30 miles per hour lashed the heavily clothed crowd.

Icy gales accompanied by subzero temperatures continued to lash the northeast U.S. yesterday and were blamed for deaths caused by fires, traffic accidents and boating disasters.

Temperatures in New York State plunged as low as 27 below zero.

New Year's Eve celebrations were curtailed in many areas by ravages of gales that gusted as high as 80 miles an hour. At least 20 persons lost their lives in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, and Rhode Island.

principle on the project had been signed by Dr. Hugh Dryden of the U.S. and Prof. Anatoli Blagonravov of the Soviet Union.

Dryden is deputy administrator of America's National Aeronautics and Space Administration, while Blagonravov heads Russia's satellite program.

In Washington, Dryden denied the report, saying: "I know of no serious discussion of this tyes of joint activity at the present moment. We have no secret agreements with Russia and there is no cooperative manned flight to the moon envisaged.

"This report must be some distorted version of the very limited agreement that we concluded and which was made public in the United Nations a few weeks ago," Dryden said.

Bosch Named President Of Dominican Republic

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, Jan. 1 (AP) — The Dominican Republic's national election board Monday formally proclaimed Juan Bosch the winner in this little republic's Dec. 20 presidential elections.

Bosch, lesder of the Dominican Revolutionary Party, defeated Viriato Fiello, of the Civic Union by a 3-1 margin. Bosch will be inaugurated Feb. 27.

Tito To Visit Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 1 (AP)— President Tito of Yugoslavia will visit Chile in 1963, sources close to the government said Monday.

Tshombe

Alport, British high commissioner to the Central African Federation.

Tshombe demanded as a condition for returning to the Katangan capital that the British, French and United States consuls there should meet him at the Lufira River and escort him to Elisabethville. Tshombe slipped out of his palace after Tunisian troops surrounded the building Friday afternoon and took refuge in Salisbury.

His statement was issued from Kolwezi, 120 miles northwest of Elisabethville, where he had gone to gather his forces about him.

It came after the United Nations troop, striking into the heart of secessionist Katanga, had reached the Lufira River about 20 miles from Jadotville. They found both bridges blown up by retreating Katangans, the UN in Leopoldville announced.

There was no immediate reaction available from the UN on the Katanga leader's terms. But observers here noted that the world organization yesterday gave Tshombe and his ministers the green light to return to Elisabethville without fear of being molested by the UN as long as they refrain from incitement against the UN or its action in Katanga.

RECESS

LEOPOLDVILLE, Jan. 1 (AP) — Central Congolese Premier Cyrille Adoula, whose government had been paralyzed by opposition in the Leopoldville Parliament, today sent Parliamentarians home on an enforced vacation until the beginning of March.

twen Dublin and Wicklow. Hundreds of snow-bound County Wicklow homes have been cut off from all food and fuel for 72 hours.

An easterly gale spread bitter weather over Holland while heavy snows covered east and north east France. Sub-zero temperatures gripped all Germany and Sweden was cold and windy.

At the same time, many parts of Italy were still bathed in sunshine. Snow and rain were falling in the Milan area and the Italian Alps, however.

New Berlin Commandant

the Pentagon.

Unlike some of his predecessors, Gen. Polk spent a month in Berlin before taking over. He conferred with Maj. Gen. Albert Watson II, the departing general, familiarized himself with his job and made a series of quick trips to important headquarters in Europe and the United States.

"I want to get to know the faces at the other end of the cable," he explained in an interview. "It's not like running a purely military command. The man who succeeded me at the fourth armored didn't spend more than half an hour with me."

Gen. Polk is a distant cousin of President James K. Polk, who ran the country during the war with Mexico in 1848.

As Berlin commandant, Gen. Polk father about that," said Gen. Polk when questioned about the relationship. "He told me: 'don't ask about him. We're not proud of him. He was one of the worst presidents we ever had.' But I think some of the historians have had a better opinion of him lately."

As Berlin commandant, Gen. Polk will have 6,500 men under him, but most of their problems will be handled by his troop commander, Brig. Gen. Frederick O. Hartel. Gen. Polk's main job will be to represent the United States in dealing with the British and French commandants, who boss their own sectors of West Berlin, and with Mayor Willy Brandt, the elected head of the city government.

All three look to him for leadership, but it has to be leadership of a not too obstructive kind if it is to succeed.

The job used to involve dealing with the Soviet commandant in East Berlin. Now Moscow has abolished that post and an East German commandant has been appointed in an attempt to strengthen the local satellite regime. The U.S. does not recognize this government. One of Gen. Polk's jobs will be to counter attempts to wangle some kind of indirect recognition, perhaps through the East German city commandant.
