LEND ME YOUR EARS:

FAO Exodus To Madrid Council Meet Begins

All roads, at least for the UN Food and Agricultural Organization's headquarters here, lead not to Rome these days but Madrid. FAO's governing Council has its 26th session scheduled for the Spanish capital June 3-5.

By plane, train and — for at least two fortunate officers — fast sports car, FAO personnel are in full exodus for Madrid.

Leading them is much-travelled Director General B. R. Sen, just back from a quick trip to the States. Among other top FAO people Madrid-bound: Deputy Director General Sir Herbert Broadley, Agriculture Division Director Dr. F. T. Wahlen, Economics Division A. H. Boerma, Fisheries Division Director D. B. Finn, Forestry Division

Mrs. Regala gave a reception at their rose — and other flower-twined Monte Mario home for visiting Philippine Secretary of Commerce Oscar Ledesma and Mrs. Ledesma. Among those at the reception were Manila Chronicle editor Ernesto Del Rosario and Mrs. Rosario, U.S. Ambassador James D. Zellerbach, Australian Minister and Mrs. Paul McGuire, Argentine Ambassador and Mrs. Videla Balaguer, Fiat Rome manager Dr. Paolo Douglas Scotti, Comm. Erminio Montanelli, Dutch Ambassador and Mrs. Hendrik Nicolaas Boon, and the AP's Alan Jackson.

Regala, besides being Philippine ambassador here, is his country's envoy to Greece and Israel and will shortly present his credentials to yet another neighboring country.

People, Places

Bricktop, back from her American visit, hasn't been wasting time. Tall, blonde and handsome Stewart Hardy is headed toward the Via Veneto bistro and northern Europe, and songbird Thelma Carpenter returns for her second engagement on or about June 5.

Britain's Press Officer J. D. Blakeway entertained the British and colonial nurses in attendance on the nurses' conference in Rome at his home 3 Nicola Martelli. This group is headed by Dame Elizabeth Cockayne. . . Les Welch, casting director for the Mario Lan-
