Ex-Iraq Security Chief Goes On Trial

BAGHDAD, Jan. 6 (AP) — Iraq's former security chief is on trial before the People's Court in Baghdad on charges of torturing prisoners, firing on demonstrators and misuses of public funds. The Army prosecutor who read the indictment to the five-member tribunal when the trial opened yesterday demanded the death sentence for the accused man, Bajjat Al-Attiah, Director General of Security under the regime of Nuri Es Said.

Al-Attiah pleaded innocent, amid guffaws from the packed court, sitting in the one-time Chamber of Parliament.

The trial is one in a series which has already brought death sentences to five persons, including former Foreign Minister Jamali. These sentences have still to be confirmed by Premier Abdel Karim Kassem as Defense Minister.

OTV

The trial is being televised and throughout Baghdad crowds gathered before television screens in stores and cafes to watch the proceedings.

(A Baghdad Radio report of the trial heard in Damascus said the prosecutor, Col. Amin Majed Mohammed Amin, accused Al-Attiah of herding lawyers, students and intellectuals into prison under the false charges. He said two died under torture during an investigation ordered by Al-Attiah.)

Clash

Meanwhile, the left-wing newspaper Voice of the Free Republic reported three persons were slain and many others injured in a clash at Shaqlawah Friday night between henchmen of the wealthy landowners and a band of "patriotic citizens."

The newspaper said landowners Osman Miran and Sadio Miran organized an attack by an armed gang against the citizenry to "carry out reprisals, spread panic and put an end to calls for agrarian reform."

Another clash was reported from Tuz Khurmat, where an armed gang was said to have attacked and ransacked a bookshop, tearing up books and publications and tossing them into the street.

These incidents, plus last week's slaying of a member of the Popular Resistance Movement in Baghdad itself, apparently are the basis for exaggerated reports abroad of fighting in Iraq.

Flynn

idealism tickle Flynn, 50, said he also hopes to publish a story he has written and photographs he has taken of his Cuban activities.

The actor said he found Castro "one of those men who come along occasionally in human history and fight for ideals."

"And I think he also has a hard blood," Flynn said with a laugh. "I never saw a man jump around with such energy."

Flynn said he got his wound eight days ago at Central Palma sugar mill in Oriente Province. He said he did all his campaigning with the rebels there.

"When bullets fly," Flynn said, "sometimes people get hurt. I was hit behind a post — as usual — when a bullet hit the post and then my leg."

He pointed to his right leg and added: "I lost a little skin and a little blood. Now I am getting queries on whether I lost a leg."

"The only thing that really wounded me was not being able to get anything to eat except tangerines."

Flynn declined to say how he arranged his rendezvous with Castro but said he had been interested in the rebel leader for eight years.

Another movie actor, George Raft, also is reported in Havana. Leonard Stone, Raft's secretary, said in Hollywood he phoned his employer at the Hotel Capri in Havana. The actor is part owner of the casino there.

"George told me that he grabbed a Castro banner and welcomed the rebel forces," Stone said. "He said he had been made an honorary colonel and was helping to feed the Castro troops."

Human Cell Chemical May Cure Or Ultimately Destroy

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 6 (UPI) — A complex chemical recently found in the human body can lead to destruction of man or to solution of a host of uncontrolled disease problems, Dr. Thomas M. Rivers said here yesterday.

Rivers, vice president in charge of medical affairs for the National Foundation (formerly the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis), said this complex chemical is nucleic acid, "the business end of a virus."

Nucleic acid can itself cause infection and disease and has recently been manufactured in research laboratories, he said.

He said it is a constituent of all living things and is the key by which characteristics are handed from one generation to another, in human beings and viruses alike.

"It is not too much to think that some day man will make a nucleic acid which will induce cells to manufacture a virus far deadlier than any now known and capable of doing more harm to mankind than the hydrogen bomb," he said.

It has been found, Rivers said, that nucleic acid from viruses can enter living cells, take over complete control of their activities, and somehow force them to produce additional viruses. This is what happens, he said, when nucleic acid from polio viruses attacks human cells — it brings about production of more virus particles which may then destroy nerve cells and cause paralysis.
