LEND ME YOUR EARS:

Marlborough Opens Rome Gallery

MARLBOROUGH GALLERIA D'ARTE at 5 Via Gregoriana was jammed by scores of art patrons and well-wishers during its Tuesday night opening. For those who took time to see the show now hanging, there were works by Chagall, Ernst, Feininger, Gauguin, Klee, Matisse, Modigliani, Picasso, Renoir and a dozen other masters of the 19th and 20th Centuries. The new gallery is on street level and has three major salons and an open courtyard which was used to good effect as the showroom for an 1898 bronze by Henry Moore. Bruno Herlitzka and Contessa Carla Ranicali of Rome are partners with Francis K. Lloyd, who owns the London Marlborough, in the Rome venture, and will have London's stock and artists for shows. Lloyd, in turn, will also represent the Rome artists Alberto Burri, Piero Dorazio, Arnoldo Pomodoro, Giò Pomodoro, Giulio Turcato and Emilio Vedova.

NEW GALLERY, NEW SHOW — Lyonel Feininger's "Small Mask" is one of 69 works by masters of this and the last century hanging in Marlborough Galleria d'Arte, newly opened at 5 Via Gregoriana.

Soviets Allow Goodman Tour Records, Films

MOSCOW, June 6 (AP) — Soviet authorities let American companies film and record Benny Goodman's jazz band playing here last night after a temporary blackout.

Both RCA Victor and NBC were stopped Monday night from recording the music Goodman is playing for Soviet audiences.

Today Goodman and a representative of the U.S. Embassy accompanying the party telephoned repeatedly to Moscow and finally the permission came.

Goodman himself had no immediate comment to make but the band seemed to show a livelier style, evidently happy their playing in the Soviet Union is going to be recorded, and their faces on American television screens.

The local Sochi paper, Red Flag, commended the playing—but with reservations similar to those voiced after the concerts in Moscow. The paper said the orchestra was well rehearsed and displayed a high level of professionalism. It added:

"Benny Goodman himself is an excellent clarinetist."

Then the newspaper voiced its reservations:

"Naturally all our friends from beyond the ocean showed us did not please us. We are accustomed to varied orchestras (that is what they call jazz orchestras here) which perform together with the presentation of various variety forms such as a poet reading his verses, and so on."

None of the Americans in these parts could recall an instance of a poet in the United States reading his verses while Benny Goodman played.

De Gaulle

paring to assassinate the President had been arrested.

Details released by the Ministry and by police officials in Vesoul were meager. Some Paris newspapers seemed to greet the announcement with skepticism.

De Gaulle escaped death last September when an explosive charge planted at the side of the road failed to go off as his car passed.

Five men were arrested several weeks ago and accused of plotting against De Gaulle's life while he was on a trip to the Limoges area.

De Gaulle seemed to be completely relaxed and unworried as he mingled with the people who gathered in each village along his route this morning. He smiled broadly as he stepped into the crowds to shake outstretched hands in the village streets.

Heavy security forces were everywhere. Gendarmes could even be seen in the fields and woods along the presidential route.

Some police reports said that the plotters planned to use a booby-trapped dog, or perhaps several dogs, in the attack on De Gaulle.

state.

The charge of plotting against the state was based on the discovery of papers concerning Bidault, judicial sources said.

In connection with the action, the prosecutor requested Bidault, a member of the National Assembly believed out of the country, be stripped of his parliamentary immunity. The request must pass through the Supreme Court.

Both cases have been placed into the hands of public magistrates.

OAS Bombs, Moslems Sack Algiers Hospital

of the European city and adjacent to the European part of the Belcourt suburb.

Its normal capacity is 2,500 beds. Before the European terrorists started their desperate efforts to block Algerian independence, 80 per cent of the patients were Moslems.

In recent months, most Moslem patients were evacuated to makeshift clinics manned by Moslem doctors.

Late yesterday, a commando of the FLN inspected the hospital and its facilities, announcing that Moslems planned to take it over.

The Secret Army has long had sympathizers among the hospital staff. The Moslem Nationalists have frequently accused the European doctors of mistreating Moslem patients — a charge which the doctors deny.

Officials of the Algerian Gas and Electricity Company said the control installations of the Darguina Dam east of Algiers have been blown up.

No official confirmation could be obtained so far.

According to company officials, the building housing the installation was blown up at 11:30 a.m. by a commando of the Secret Army Organization.

The Secret Army last night threatened to blow up all dams in Algeria.

ANOTHER STRIKE

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — President Kennedy ordered the U.S. Justice Department today to seek a court order stopping the strike of machinists and other employes against Republic Aviation, the only source of supply for F-105 jet fighters.

Kennedy said the strike of 9,000 workers "will imperil the national safety" if permitted to continue.

Diminishing Returns

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio, June 15 (AP) — Veteran police officer Delman Whitman addressed this request for leave to his superior officer: "Today is our 20th wedding anniversary. Twenty years ago I got a whole day off, but today I need only one half-day."

Phoumi said Boun Oum will present his resignation to the King on Monday and immediately afterwards Souvanna and his cabinet will be installed by the sovereign.

Germans To Boot Trumpeter Baker

MUNICH, June 15 (AP)—American jazz trumpeter Chet Baker has been ordered to stay out of Germany for the next three years, and he will probably be deported within a few days, police said today.

Baker, 33, was arrested ten days ago on narcotics charges, theft and forgery. Baker's buddy and drummer, Donald Scott Brown, 37, was also arrested yesterday on narcotics charges.

Unverified reports indicated Baker and Brown will be released on the Swiss border at Lindau, and that they plan to give a concert somewhere in Switzerland.

Senate Committee Suggests Big Sale Of Arms Surplus

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — Sale of some $177,500,000 worth of surplus items from bulging U. S. defense stockpiles was recommended to the Senate Thursday by its Armed Services Committee.

The group approved a bill recommended by Senator Stuart Symington, (D., Mo.), chairman of a subcommittee which is conducting a special investigation of the multi-billion dollar inventories and surpluses.

Congressional approval is needed for disposal of most of the varied stockpile items and a report from the Symington subgroup said the Treasury hopes to recover some $760,000,000 from these sales.

FALL IS THE SEASON for the Rome art world to move from low to high gear with two or three new shows opening at the galleries every week. Something for every taste and a taste of every variety is on display. Saturday night a large crowd turned up for the opening of the "small forms" show at the Il Camino Gallery, 45 Via del Babuino, in which small size paintings of every school were on view. Among the most popular were Paolo Del Pianto's paintings of ballet forms as light, Lidia Ruffini's textureful oil portraits, Franco Falla's bursts of blues and reds and Ernesto Cominetti's soft views of Italian scenes. Alberto Sartoris's one-man show at the 88 Gallery on Via Margutta, was very popular. A new show on Oct. 13 when sporting subjects by Henry Koehler go on display. At the Marlborough Art Gallery, 5 Via Gregoriana, you can see Italian and foreign masters of the 19th and 20th centuries. Gassman To Tour The U.S.

Italian actor Vittorio Gassman wants to bring a new theatrical venture to the United States.

He plans next year to head a troupe of Italian actors who will give readings in Italian from a repertoire that will include scenes from Shakespeare.

For those in the audience who speak English, there will be English subtitles flashed on a screen above the actors' heads.

Does it sound a little odd to present an American audience with Italian translations of English-language plays and then provide English subtitles so theatergoers can understand what's going on?

Gassman doesn't think so. He told the Associated Press:

"My real aim in using subtitles is to try and lure the younger people into the theater, those who have yet to be exposed to the beauty and glory of the legitimate stage.

"However, I feel that the plays are so well known, especially the scenes that will be performed, that most theatergoers will not be worried by the fact that we are speaking Italian."

SAINT JOAN as portrayed by Anna Proclemer at the Quirino ends this week. Miss Proclemer has been playing the George Bernard Shaw role throughout Italy this year.
