Jackson Pollock Show To Open Here

SIXTY WORKS BY JACKSON POLLOCK, the inventor of the "drip technique" of painting and probably the most important new figure in the art world since World War II, go on exhibition at the Marlborough Gallery, 5 Via Gregoriana, next Wednesday, Oct. 24. They include oils, drawings and tempera works from all the artist's different periods from 1938 to 1953. Pollock, who died in 1956, progressed from early works in the 1930's which were strongly influenced by Thomas Hart Benton to a type of late Cubism in the 1940's and achieved his greatest renown with his radical innovation of drip paintings, beginning in 1947. His influence has extended to younger painters all over the world and has become especially noticeable in the Ecole de Paris painters. Often imitated but never matched, Pollock became the butt of many anti-modern art jokes in the '50's but since his death his work has become very widely accepted by the public and he is now accepted as a modern master. The Marlborough Gallery exhibition, which will consist mostly of oils, will be the first big Pollock show in Rome in almost four years. Many of the works will be on display for the first time and have been sent by the artist's wife and galleries in various parts of the world.

Dick Powell Resigns Post But Says Not For Health

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18 (AP) — Actor-producer Dick Powell, fighting cancer, stepped out of the presidency of Four-Star Television telling stockholders:

"I am not a bit scared. I am not resigning the presidency for health purposes."

Stockholders yesterday elevated Powell to chairman of the board and elected Thomas J. McDermott, chief vice president, as president. The changes were made at Powell's request.

Powell told a hushed stockholders' meeting that he is gaining in his battle against cancer. He brought up the subject of his health.

Although actors Charles Boyer and David Niven helped organize the company five years ago, Powell said, people tend to think of Four Star as a one-man company.

"I don't know why," Powell said, "but my name has always been more closely associated with it. Perhaps it is because people remember those old pictures I made with Ruby Keeler."

Powell said that when he learned he was sick he demanded that his doctors tell him what his illness was.

"They have a fancy name for it," he said, "but it's a tumor about this size (he formed his hands to the size of a lamb chop) on the upper part of the right lung.

ACTOR DICK POWELL says he is now winning his battle against cancer.

"I've been taking radiation daily at the UCLA (University of California, Los Angeles) Medical Center. The machine is so huge, we call it the blast-off machine.

"The doctors say the shadow has been decreasing and I've insisted on seeing the X-rays, and they're right.

"Just last Friday, the doctor called my wife (actress June Allyson) and said, 'You and Dick should go out and celebrate this weekend.' Then he hold her the shadow had decreased 85 per cent.

"I felt 12 feet fall," Powell said.

"YOU PEOPLE MIGHT AS WELL STAY UP. I'LL BE RIGHT BACK."

World Premiere Of New O'Neill Play Set For Nov. 9

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 18 (AP) — The world premiere of Eugene O'Neill's posthumously discovered play "More Stately Mansions" has been tentatively set for Nov. 9, Stockholm's Royal Dramatic Theater reports.

The play was discovered among O'Neill's papers in the Yale University Library in the late fifties. After some discussion it was decided to let the play open at the Royal Dramatic Theater, which during the past few decades has created a rather unique O'Neill tradition in Europe.

The Royal Dramatic has since the mid-twenties presented more than a dozen O'Neill dramas. Three of them, "Long Day's Journey Into Night," "A Touch of The Poet," and "Hughie" have been world premieres. "More Stately Mansions" will be the fourth.

The mammoth play, which in its original version would have required a 10-hour performance, has been edited down by Dr. Karl-Ragnar Gierow.

American, English Medics Share Nobel Prize

The three scientists received the prize for their discoveries concerning the molecular structure of nucleic acids and its significance for information transfers in living material."

This discovery will have far-reaching consequences in biology and medicine," an official announcement from the Caroline Institute said. "Research workers all over the world are today busy trying to decipher the biological code in all its varieties and the break-through for this most fundamental problem is the discovery of the molecular structure of deoxyribonucleic acid made by this year's awardees.

"By combining stereochemical concepts with the information derived from X-ray diffraction studies this year's Nobel Prize winners could show that deoxyribonucleic acid is in the form of a double helix on the molecular level."

The four types of organic bases in the nucleic acids are combined in a special way so that one base in one helix is always bound to a particular base in the other helix by hydrogen bonds. Deoxyribonucleic acid can be visualized as two spiral staircases wound into each other and the steps in the staircase are the organic bases. The sugar and phosphate groups form the outer side of the staircase.

It is the order of the base pairs along the deoxyribonucleic acid chain which is responsible for the biological code. Groups of three base pairs determine, for example, which amino acid shall be introduced into a protein chain during its synthesis.

Nucleic acids are the prime organizers of living matter. They are the storage place for the biological code. In nature two types of nucleic acids occur. Deoxyribonucleic is in higher organisms located in the cell nucleus, that is in the hereditary organelles. Ribonucleic acid plays an important role in cell growth and protein synthesis. In certain lower forms of life, such as certain viruses, the hereditary deoxyribonucleic acid of higher organisms is replaced by ribonucleic acid.

"Deoxyribonucleic acid is a large molecule, and like ribonucleic acid it consists of three types of building blocks, a sugar (ribose in ribonucleic acid and deoxyribose in deoxyribonucleic acid), organic bases and phosphoric acid. These building blocks are polymerized to long chains. It is obvious that knowledge of the three-dimensional molecular structure of the nucleic acids is of vital importance for our understanding of the biological code and its biological function."

Ranger 5 Headed For Moon

complete confirmation of its exact trajectory would not be known until more data had been examined.

If all continued well, officials said, the spacecraft would begin sending back to earth television pictures of the moon between 2 and 2:30 p.m. Rome time on Sunday and would continue until it impacted on the moon, which was expected to take place about 3 p.m. Rome time.

The pictures would show the coarseness of the moon's surface, small scale land features and altitudes, depths and slopes of mountains and craters.

The package intended to land on the moon is 24 inches in diameter and half the thickness is balsa wood to absorb the impact jolt.

Packed in the center of the ball are a radio transmitter and a sensitive sesmograph to register quakes and metor strikes.

A record of quakes would reveal much about the surface, whether it has a crust like earth's or if it is covered with lava, dust or is hard like granite.

The Gamma Ray Spectrometer was to detect whether four elements found on Earth — uranium, thorium, radium and potassium-also are on the moon. These elements emit characteristic radiations which the spectrometer could spot.

Kennedy-Khrushchev

American side by Dean Rusk, the secretary of state, and Llewellyn Thompson, former ambassador to the Soviet Union and now Soviet affairs adviser to Rusk. For the Soviet's, Anatoly Dobrynin, the ambassador in Washington, and V. Semenov, a deputy foreign minister, attended the session.

As Gromyko conferred with Kennedy, the White House sought to minimize reports that a meeting between Kennedy and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev was imminent.

The possibility of such a meeting nonetheless was considered a likely topic of discussion between Kennedy and Gromyko. This was Gromyko's third visit to the White House since Kennedy took office.

Khrushchev has, in effect, made known to Kennedy through Foy Kohler, the new U.S. ambassador to Moscow, that he is very interested in a face-to-face discussion of the Berlin dispute with the President.

(Kennedy has promised Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder of West Germany a fill-in on the conference this afternoon before Schroeder departs from New York for Bonn, diplomatic informants said today.

(Gromyko is scheduled to call on Kennedy at 5 p.m. EST, only one hour before Schroeder is due to fly to New York and from there to Bonn.

(The unusual Kennedy-Schroeder briefing will be carried out by telephone between the White House and New York.)

Kennedy has already decided to see Khrushchev if, as expected here, the Soviet Premier goes through with the decision to visit the United States to attend the UN General Assembly. Gromyko came here from New York yesterday. After seeing Kennedy, he is scheduled to spend the evening with Secretary of State Dean Rusk at a "working dinner" attended also by U.S. and Soviet policy advisers.

The White House session here follows by two days a Moscow conference between Khrushchev and Kohler. It was learned that Khrushchev indicated to the new American envoy that he considers more discussions on the Berlin situation to be desirable. He also clearly in-

Britain Wants Painting Returned

LONDON, Oct. 24 (AP) — The guardian of Britain's art treasures has issued a dramatic appeal to an American doctor to return to this country a work of art which got away.

The doctor acquired the picture concerned in good faith, but, unknown to him, a breach of British law was involved.

Lord Cottesloe, chairman of the Arts Council of Great Britain, is asking Dr. Myron Prinzmetal, a heart specialist, of Beverly Hills, Calif., to help send back to Britain a portrait of Dr. William Harvey — the 16th Century English surgeon who discovered the circulation of blood.

Singers Gain Power From Bracelets?

MOSCOW, Oct. 24 (AP) — Soviet singers say their voices gain richness and power from leather bracelets filled with metals, woods and other materials.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the bracelets were invented by a pianist, Mikhail Yakubovich, who speculated that "combinations of certain substances cause radiation of negligible energies which influence the vocal mechanism."

"In experiments, he has placed these combinations of different substances in leather bracelets and put them on the hand of a subject," Tass reported.

"In a few minutes the timber became clearer and a tired man's voice was no longer hoarse and he spoke with greater ease.

The Tass correspondent said he tried it while reading Pushkin's poetry. "After a few lines his voice became clearer and assumed a ringing quality," it said.

The report also said professional Soviet singers had confirmed that the bracelets had improved the quality and power of their voices.

Khrushchev, Kennedy Reply To U Thant

bases in Cuba.

"Soviet ships are still heading towards Cuba, they said. The only way this government can get precise information of the cargoes they are carrying is through the quarantine."

U Thant's proposal called for "voluntary suspensions of all arms shipments to Cuba and also the voluntary suspension of the quarantine measures involving the searching of ships bound for Cuba. He offered his own services as mediator during the "freeze."

In a separate message directed to Cuba he asked that it stop construction and development of major military facilities during the period of the negotiations.

The telegram sent by Khrushchev to U Thant reads:

I have received your message and have attentively examined the proposal it contains. I welcome your initiative. I understand your anxiety concerning the situation which arose in the Caribbean area, as the Soviet government also considers that situation as most dangerous and as demanding an immediate intervention of the United Nations.

I declare to you that I agree with your proposal which corresponds to the interests of peace.

Following is the text of Kennedy's message:

I deeply appreciate the spirit which prompted your message of yesterday.

As we made clear in the Security Council, the existing threat was created by the secret introduction of offensive weapons into Cuba, and the answer lies in the removal of such weapons.

In your message and your statement to the Security Council last night, you have made certain suggestions and have invited preliminary talks to determine whether satisfactory arrangements can be assured.

Ambassador Stevenson is ready to discuss promptly these arrangements with you.

I can assure you of our desire to reach a satisfactory and peaceful solution of this matter.

Yank Sees Nikita

meeting when he asked me if I would see him. He seemed very tired but very calm . . .

"He is a very bouncy person. During the whole time I spoke with him we were not once interrupted—not even by the ring of a telephone bell. There was no evidence of any desperate flashing of messages."

Knox, who had been in Moscow on a business trip, met Khrushchev before—in 1960. He said that on his return home he would contact Dean Rusk, secretary of state and a personal friend, and possibly see President Kennedy.

Tanker Passes

hailed by the Navy ship and questioned about its cargo. The tanker captain said he carried only petroleum. Since the tanker had left its Communist port long before the blockade was announced Monday, and there was no known evidence that tankers had been used to carry weapons, these sources said, the ship was allowed to proceed.

The Navy's forebearance in not boarding the tanker, the informants said, was aimed at getting across to Khrushchev that the United States was not in Cuban water looking for a fight.

Pope's Appeal

because this loyal and open attitude is of great value as a witness . . . in the face of history.

"To promote, favor and accept negotiations, at all levels and at all times, is a rule of wisdom and prudence which calls down the blessings of heaven and earth."

Speaking in French — the language of world diplomacy — rather than his native Italian, the Pope spoke in a calm but measured tone.

His sudden decision to speak today took the Vatican by surprise. Radio technicians worked feverishly up to broadcast time to prepare for the message. Vatican press office translators were pressed into service.

Many of the thousands of Catholic prelates, here for the Ecumenical Council, were unaware of the Pope's decision to speak. The Council was in recess today.

Only two weeks ago, on the day after the Council opened, the Pope made another dramatic plea for peace. He called on world leaders to negotiate and sacrifice, warning them "they will one day have to account for their actions to God, their Creator."

Last year, on Sept. 10, he prayed for peace and then addressed an urgent call for negotiations to avoid war in the Berlin crisis, then at peak intensity.

His plea in September, 1961, and today recalled similar messages made by two other popes: Pius, later St. Pius X, in 1914, and Pius XII on Aug. 24, 1939, a week before the start of the second war.

sors," he claimed.

Prime Minister Nehru said today India would never submit to "massive Chinese aggression," no matter how many reverses occurred.

Meanwhile, there was no further activity on the diplomatic side of the border war since India and China made contradictory proposals yesterday for halting the fighting and holding talks.

CHINESE REPORT ATTACK

TOKYO, Oct. 26 (AP)—Peiping reported early today that it smashed an alleged new Indian attack "under the cover of heavy fire" against Chinese frontier guards in the northwestern sector of the Sino-Indian border.

Peiping Radio, in a broadcast monitored here, said the Indian troops "regrouped their forces and launched an attack north of the Chip Chap River at noon Tuesday."

The radio said "after the Chinese frontier guards hit back in self-defense, the invading Indian troops fled," according to a report from the Chinese frontier guards in Sinkiang.

Peiping claimed in the same Tuesday afternoon, the Indian troops "which invaded and entrenched themselves in the area of the Changlung River Valley in Sinkiang attacked the Chinese frontier guards."

"The Chinese guards resolutely struck back, defeated the Indian troops and removed their aggressive strongpoints in the area," Peiping said.

Floods Hit Malaya

Mikoyan Flies To Cuba

stro's demands.

In his formal statement backing Castro's stand, Mikoyan referred to "the proposals of Premier Fidel Castro which comprise five well-known points."

The statement did not stipulate the points, but they include evacuation of the Guantanamo Naval Base.

Mikoyan's main task on his Cuban visit was understood here to be to win Fidel Castro's agreement to UN inspection of the missile removay. However, Mikoyan's departing statement has clouded the mission.

On Thursday, Mikoyan discussed the Cuban crisis with U.S. officials at the deputy premier's own suggestion.

Mikoyan met at dinner with "old friend" John J. McCloy, who heads President Kennedy's special negotiating team on the Cuban crisis.

McCloy said after the lengthy meeting that he and Ambassador Adlai Stevenson had "straightened out" the Russians on the U.S. position.

Describing the meeting as friendly and useful, McCloy said no new proposals were made by the Soviet diplomats.

He described Mikoyan as "a tough trader" and said: "There is no doubt in my mind that he is going down to placate Castro."

MIKOYAN ARRIVES

HAVANA, Nov. 2 (AP) — Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan arrived at Havana Airport late Friday by plane from New York. He was greeted by Cuban Premier Fidel Castro and other Cuban government officials.

President Talks

situation:

"I want to take the opportunity to report on the conclusions which this government has reached on the basis of yesterday's aerial photographs which will be made available tomorrow, as well as other indications, namely, that the Soviet missile bases in Cuba are being dismantled, their missiles and related equipment are being crated, and the fixed installations at these sites are being destroyed.

The United States intends to follow closely the completion of this work through a variety of means including aerial surveillance until such time as an equally satisfactory international means of verification is effected.

While the quarantine remains in effect we are hoping that adequate procedures can be reached on international inspection of Cuban-bound cargoes.

The international committee of the Red Cross, in our view, would be an appropriate agent in this matter.

The continuation of these measures by air and sea until the threats to peace posed by these offensive weapons is gone, is in keeping with our pledge to seek their removal or withdrawal from our hemisphere. It is in keeping with the resolution of the O.A.S. and the exchange of letters with Chairman Khrushchev of Oct. 27 and 28.

Progress is now being made towards the restoration of peace in the Caribbean and it is our firm hope and purpose that this progress shall go forward.

We will continue to keep the American people informed on this vital matter."

Poor Priests Try For Labor Jobs

GENEVA, Nov. 2 (Reuter) — Orthodox parish priests in Greece are so poor that 15 of them recently applied to emigrate to West Germany in the hope of getting industrial jobs there, according to a report published here today.

The report, issued by the Ecumenical Press Service under the auspices of the World Council of Churches and other international church bodies, said Greek priests' salaries ranged from $6.50 to $12.80 a week. The lower rate was for those with primary education and the higher for university theological graduates.

by Turkey.

A total of ten C-135's, the military counterpart of the Boeing 707 airliner, have arrived here or are on their way from the U.S. to carry out the airlift. Brig. Gen. Robert D. Forman, European commander for the Military Air Transport Service (MATS), flew from France to supervise the start of the round-the-clock operation.

Relief crews are based in Calcutta to bring the planes back for reloading.

Rain And Wind Play Havoc Length Of Italy

Snow, hail, rain and heavy winds caused casualties and damage throughout Italy Thursday.

A man was killed in a highway near the northern city of Trent, when a strong wind blew him against a passing car.

Many mountain passes in the Alps were obstructed by wind driven snow that piled up in drifts three feet high in places.

The Italian Riviera was hit by gales. Rain and a high tide flooded the famous St. Mark's Square in Venice.

Naples and Mt. Vesuvius caught a heavy hail storm. A rough sea racing around the Island of Sardinia delayed regular ferry runs and wrecked a number of small fishing boats.

Off With A Bang

TOKYO, Nov. 2 (AP) — Japan's wild game hunting season opened with a bang—one hunter killed, two injured, six arrested for breaking game laws.

near Mars. It will take seven months for the flight, the Soviet announcement said.

The new space station weighed 893.5 kilograms, just a few pounds short of a ton, and carried a vast amount of electronic equipment to measure the possibilities of interplanetary radio communications. Above all it is intended to photograph Mars.

If all goes well, the camera will start clicking sometimes toward the end of May 1963. It may relay back pictures which will help solve the big problem — are there living beings on Mars?

Astronomers have known for many years that the big planet looked as if it might be inhabited. There is a great green-blue area which seems to change with the seasons almost as if summer came and went, and with it the harvest.

Moreover, there is a peculiar cross-hatching of lines which to the telescopic eye look like canals.

Then there are two white spots at either pole of the planet, and they enlarge and contract just like the ice caps at the north and south poles.

Also there is known to be a type of atmosphere on the planet — not just what kind, no one is sure. The pictures may help solve that, if Mars comes close enough to offer a space eye view of the planet.

Soviets Delay Convoy

BERLIN, Nov. 2 (AP) — The Soviets today delayed a westbound U.S. Army convoy on the Berlin Autobahn, a U.S. Army spokesman reported.

A party spokesman said that the other four Free Democrat ministers stood "with absolute solidarity" behind Stammberger, and would resign if he did. This presumably would bring down the uneasy coalition government created a year ago.
