PHOTO WORTH MANY WORDS — A 200-pound man stands in hole in wooden bridge in Lincoln, R. I., to demonstrate unsafe condition of span.

John T. Russell, local photographer, said he tried for three weeks to get various town officials to order repair of bridge. Finally he posed this picture and sent it to the Pawtucket, R. I., Times. After photo was printed on Page one, repairs were hastily made to ailing bridge within few hours.

Lebanon Grants American New Oil Exploration Rights

(Special to the Daily American)

NEW YORK, May 7 — Lebanon has granted new oil and gas rights for its coastal areas to an American, Darwin P. Pearson, of Columbus, Neb.

Decrees have been passed by the Council of Ministers granting two prospecting permits to Pearson. The new permits cover north and south of Beirut, including both onshore and offshore areas north of Beirut, between the towns of Batroun and Jounieh. The second permit covers the offshore area south of Beirut, between the towns of Sidon and Tyre.

Applications for the acreage were filed in 1958. Now that the permits have been granted, Pearson says plans to utilize them will be taken since the crisis in Lebanon has subsided and the situation is normal.

Preliminary discussions concerning the magnetometer and electromagnetic surveys are now taking place with the world famous Hunting Geophysical Service of England.

Pearson said that he was offered private capital from Switzerland and Belgium since the Japanese brought in their first offshore well in the Middle East, but turned it down. He is now considering very seriously organizing an Italian company, since Italy has developed a strong economy which leans toward free enterprise more and more each day.

There are many reasons why an Italian company could be advantageous, according to Pearson. One would be that offshore drilling equipment would cost less to build there than in any other country in the world. Secondly, Italy could import production if and when oil is found, since she has the refineries and is now expanding her petrochemical production.
